Revised free legal service system proposed by Nixon

WASHINGTON-- President Nixon asked Congress last Friday to provide America's poor with free legal assistance "independent of political pressures."

It was a new version of a 1971 bill which Congress had liberalized and which the President vetoed because he considered it too expensive.

But the previous objections, principally against limiting and gagging the activities of poverty lawyers, are expected to crop up again.

In proposing creation of a Legal Services Corporation, Nixon insisted the need still exists for high-quality legal assistance in civil actions "to those who would otherwise be unable to afford it."

"Justice is served far better and differences are settled more rationally within the system than on the street. Now is the time to make legal services an integral part of our judicial system," he told Congress.

The President's bill would replace the legal aid program involving some 2,250 lawyers in 900 communities around the country. This experimental project began eight years ago and is now operating out of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The President's proposal also

Pre-School head resigns; says program 'run like social club'

Norman Johnson, executive director of Indianapolis Pre-Schools, said this week he resigned effective May 25, "because the corporate board chose to deal in personalities and treated the schools like social clubs rather than a business."

In an exclusive interview with The Recorder, Johnson said he avoided the media because they were only interested in negative aspects of the case.

His main problem centered around firing of an employee that was later rehired by the corporate board, according to Johnson. "The director has the right to choose either to fire or place an employee on probation," he said.

"I decided to fire but the board felt different," Johnson continued. "The board dealt with personal attachments and friends."

His main gripe however is with the community or the lack of community involvement with the pre-school centers. "The community should have been involved and monitored the program," he said. "This support should have started with the community leaders."

"The community has a viable program that it may lose," Johnson warned. It is for black and white children but the community must come alive and see what is going on."

A concerned mother of a preschooler who preferred to remain anonymous blasted the story in the daily newspaper as "detrimental."

The spokeswoman said a member of the corporate board was asked where his moral responsibility lies and responsibility.

Man rundown during domestic quarrel dies of injuries

Willie Brown, 28, critically injured April 30 when he was struck down and dragged more than 100 feet beneath a car while hanging beneath the undercarriage of his wife's brother-in-law's automobile, died last week in Marion County General Hospital and the driver of the car, Pete Jones Jr., 35, of 3282 Hovey, has been charged with first-degree murder.

PETE JONES JR.

Brown's injuries climaxed a domestic melee which saw his wife, Mrs. Katie Brown, 28, treated at Methodist Hospital for a stab wound, his brother-in-law, Robert Petty, 33, 1943 Hillside, hospitalized with a gunshot wound in the neck--said to have been inflicted by Brown, and Jones jailed on a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill in connection with the automobile assault.

Ironically, Jones had been held in jail since April 30 under $10,000 bond on the assault charge, but he was freed under $5,000 bond following Brown's death.

At the time of the incident police pieced together this bizarre set of circumstances:

On Sunday, April 30, Brown and his wife had become embroiled in a violent argument in the couple's home at 2350 James Court, which ended with Brown slashing his wife's arm with a butcher knife.

Following the stabbing, Brown drove his wife to Methodist Hospital where doctors used 40 stitches to close the gaping knife wound and then the couple drove back to their Eastside residence "to make up."

At their home, Petty and Brown engaged in a bitter quarrel "because he (Brown) had cut my sister."

At this point, Jones, who said he just "happened to stop by" entered the picture and, according to police reports, both Petty and Jones quarreled with Brown because of the stabbing.

Brown became angry, police said, and went to the nearby home of his grandmother and obtained a .32-caliber pistol and returned to his home where he chased both Petty and Jones around the house with the gun firing several shots. One bullet struck Petty in the neck and Jones ran to his parked car and sped from the scene.

According to Capt. W. Robert Greene, who head the police department's homicide and robbery squad.

'Voice From the Gallery' silenced; rites held Tues. for A.W. Ramsey

"His voice is silent now but his influence upon the lives of all of us will live on forever."

This is but one of the many virtuous statements which were used to describe Recorder columnist Andrew W. Ramsey during last rites Tuesday morning in Second Christian Church.

ANDREW W. RAMSEY

"He was an active man involved and committed to more causes and activities than most of us hear of in a life time."

"Through his pen, he reached the multitudes of those underprivileged and those discriminated against and got the city on the move in the right direction in the field of civil rights," were some of the other eloquent statements used to describe an eloquent man.

Ramsey, whose "Voice From the Gallery" appeared in The Recorder for more than a quarter of a century, died the evening of May 11 in Winona Hospital after a brief illness.

A foreign language teacher at Crispus Attucks, Howe and Shortridge High Schools, Ramsey had been in the forefront of the local rights movement as head of both the Indiana and Indianapolis branches of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

In the 55-minute rites Tuesday, Rev. T. Garrett Benjamin pastor of Second Christian, described Ramsey as a man who influenced the "lives of every black person in Indianapolis."

Solos were rendered by Mrs. Beverly Benjamin, with invocation by Alvin Jackson, student assistant minister. The scripture was read by Rev. Ron Williams associate minister. Acknowledgments of sympathy came from Mrs. Mae-nell Newsome, a family friend. Mrs. Betty Hayes, church organist, presided.

Also on the program were Rev. R.H. Peoples, former pastor of Second Christian who now an official of the national church body; Harry Radcliffe, school board official and former fellow teacher at Attucks, and officials of the NAACP.

Ramsey's teaching career spanned a period of 42 years, 30 of them spent at Attucks.

Panel finds cop acted in self defense

A police detective team said Patrolman Richard R. Crenshaw acted in self-defense when he wounded his former neighbor, Ralph G. Davenport, 3357 N. Broadway in police headquarters last Thursday.

Davenport, 42, remained still in critical condition Wednesday in General Hospital with bullet wounds in his stomach and leg.

Acting chief Donald D. Schaefer said the detective teams "saw no reason to place charges of misconduct against" Crenshaw. He said Crenshaw will not be subject to discipline.

A 21-year-old fugitive who had been held in the County Jail under bonds totaling $30,500 after being arrested in connection with the June 1971 shooting of an Episcopal priest until his escape last November from Marion County General Hospital, was shot and fatally wounded Wednesday evening in the 600 block of Indiana Avenue.

In an earlier shooting, a man blurted out to a policeman that he had just shot and killed his estranged wife last Friday morning after having been stopped by a police radar unit.

Police identified the victim in the shooting Wednesday as Ron-nie Joe Williams, whose last known address was listed as 2510 N. New Jersey.

Williams overpowered a police officer and escaped from General Hospital where he had been taken for treatment after suffering a seizure in the Marion County Jail.

Williams had been jailed October 30 of last year in connection with the June, 1971 shooting of Father Harris C. Mooney, rector of All Saints Episcopal Church, at 16th and Central.

Father Mooney was shot and critically wounded as he walked toward his car which was parked in the lot of the Danish Table Restaurant, 1501 E. 38th, during a robbery.

Williams and another man were arrested and charged with the shooting more than a year later.

Following the shooting, Williams, a known narcotics offender, ran through an alley for more than a half-block before collapsing in a doorway in the 500 block of West Street. A .38-caliber pistol was found near his outstretched hand.

Northside blaze claims 2nd victim

A flash fire that swept through a converted garage residence May 1 claimed its second victim last week with the death Friday of Mrs. Maggie Smith who had been hospitalized in critical condition since she was engulfed by flames that partially destroyed her home at 1901 Montclair.

Mrs. Smith's six-year-old son, Duane Smith, perished in the fire and a friend, Peter Nicholas, 40, remained in critical condition Wednesday at General Hospital.

Fire investigators said the blaze was triggered by gasoline fumes ignited by an "unknown source" although it is believed that the fumes may have reached the pilot light of a hot water heater in the kitchen of the residence.

Gasoline which had been used to clean a lawnmower had been left in an uncovered can on the back porch of the Smith home.

Mrs. Smith had gone out on the back porch to get a night gown when she was engulfed by the flames which burned the skin completely from her body.

Nicholas, who was standing in the kitchen, later told fire department investigators that he "heard a whooshing sound"

14 blacks win nominations in Miss. primary election

ATLANTA, Ga.--Twenty-two of the thirty-six black candidates supported by the Southern Elections Fund (SEF) in last Tuesday's Mississippi primary elections won their contests.

The results of the Mississippi primary elections must be considered a signal victory in our continuing struggle for true representation for blacks in Canton. Because of the large democratic party registration in the state, a democratic victory in the primary election is tantamount to winning the general election as well.

"The results of the Mississippi primary elections must be considered a signal victory in our continuing struggle for true representation for blacks in the American body politic," commented Georgia State Representative Julian Bond, SEF Board Chairman. "The process of blacks presenting themselves for election--especially in areas of large black population density will continue and it will inevitably change and better conditions for the entire South."

Former local man finds challenges with Kodak

ROCHESTER, N.Y.—Robert Goodson, a former Indianapolis man, dodges a pallet truck carrying a large load of x-ray film boxes, checks the labeling methods for a film package, and waves hello to a production operator—all at one time. Without losing a breath, he calmly quips, "It's never dull around here. I'm always in the midst of activity."

It's not hard to see why Goodson is caught up in the day-to-day bustle of the x-ray film department at Eastman Kodak Company here. As an industrial engineer serving this area he helps to improve productivity through the redesign of work involving operators and supervision analyzes production problems and suggests needed changes.

"I deal with both machinery and people," stresses Goodson, who serves the areas where x-ray film is wrapped, packaged, and boxed for shipping. He works at Kodak Park, the company's largest manufacturing complex, where photographic films, papers, and chemicals are produced. "I often need to find out how long it takes to set up a machine," he said. "Can one person perform the operation efficiently, or does it require two operators?"

Pointing to a device that prints labels for film boxes, Goodson explains that he is working with a development engineer to improve the operation of this machine. This includes studying the machine set-up and various labeling alternatives.

ROBERT GOODSON, Kodak industrial engineer, examines labeling of boxes of X-ray film.

For Goodson, a graduate of Purdue University, working in industry is much different from going to college. In a job situation, he notes, one works with and relies on other individuals. Communication is a key factor. "In school, you are often sheltered in your small group of friends," he said. "Now I deal with people on all levels—production operators, engineers, manufacturing management."

Challenges arise constantly and these too, differ from classroom problem-solving. Goodson emphasizes that tackling a problem in industry requires efficient organization of available material, analyzing the problem from all facets, searching for various solutions, and then deciding on the best one to meet the needs.

Since joining the company last year, Goodson finds that each day is a learning experience. "I'm trying to absorb as much information as possible," he said. Before he came to Kodak, he had a camera and took pictures around his home in Indianapolis, Ind., where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Goodson, still reside at 3432 Winthrop Ave. Now he's learning about the complexity of film manufacture and actively participating in it.

TO GET DEGREE AT 53: The old saying "It's Never Too Late," applies here as Mrs. Sophia Anderson 2429 N. Harding, instructs one of her pupils, Angela Seymour, at School 42, where she is a student teacher. Mrs. Anderson who is 53, will be getting her bachelor's degree from Indiana Central College this month. She said that after completing high school in the evenings at Attucks, she decided to take some college courses with no intention of getting a degree. But before she knew it, she was notified that she was eligible for her bachelor's. Yes indeed, it's never too late!

Notes from police blotters—

Arrest three on marijuana counts

Three persons were arrested last Thursday on charges of possession of marijuana, common nuisance and entering the bedroom of the opposite sex when observed leaving a motel room at the Meadows Motel.

Police said the man had "tracks" on both arms and was acting nervous. He appeared in Court 10 Saturday.

Two Indianapolis residents were struck on the head by four men with a tire tool while standing in the rear of Billy's Tavern, 27th and Northwest, police said.

Description of the wanted subjects are not available because the victims were intoxicated at the time of the assault police reported. The pair was struck when they refused to hand over money.

In another incident, Samuel Little, 61, 435 W. Vermont, was arrested Saturday at his home when police found a 31-year-old man who had been hit with a hammer in the head several times," police said.

William J. Garrett, 437 Blackford, was taken to General Hospital with head injuries. Police confiscated one brick hammer. Little was slated to appear Monday in Municipal Court 10.

Health Hotline

BY RUBY

RUBY HISER

For many years a lot of us believed that prostitutes played an important part in the spread of venereal disease. We now know that this is simply not true.

Reported statistics from a number of states where such reports are made indicate that the prostitute plays a relatively small role today in the spread of V.D. Of course, this makes sense. Many professional prostitutes will seek treatment on their own. After all, it could be pretty bad for business. The old idea that V.D. was a problem strictly limited to the very lowest social economic classes just doesn't apply anymore.

In the last ten years there has been a great change in the moral behavior of people. Statistics now show that a large number of cases seen in clinic #8 are young people ages ranging from 12-24 years old.

One out of every 10 high school students will have V.D. this year. Syphilis and gonorrhea is the nations number one communicable disease, now with 650,000 reported cases last year and 2 1/2 million estimated and reported cases. Venereal disease is a health problem and not a moral problem. You could be next on the list. Get your V.D. check-up today.

Remember send your questions to: Health Hotline; c/o Ms. Ruby Hiser, Marion County General Hospital, 960 Locke Street - Indianapolis, Indiana 46202.

New clinic hours are Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday.

The camp fee of $25 provides bus transportation to and from Eagle Creek, insurance, all materials at camp except sleeping gear, and lunch everyday the children will cook.

day 8:00 a.m. - 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, 12:00 to 7:30 p.m. For further information call 630-7192.

Dr. Donald E. Humphreys, Assistant Professor of Medicine, Section of Infectious Disease and sponsor of V.D. clinic services, will serve as medical consultant to Health hotline column.

Six bus pick-up points will be provided for each session. Sessions are according to townships with pick-up points in each township or one may register for any session and drive to those pickup points.

The sessions are: July 25 to July 31, Wayne and Pike Townships; July 9 to July 20, Washington Townships; July 23 to Aug. 3, Lawrence, Warren and Center Townships; Aug. 6 to Aug. 17, Decatur, Perry and Franklin Townships.

Because of the great demand, early registration is advisable. Brochures containing registration information are available at the main branch libraries. For additional information call 926-5401 ext. 35.

By the way...
by Joe Black
Letters. We get letters.
We get lots and lots of letters about the various things we discuss in "BY THE WAY."
Not all the letters we get agree with us either. Not by a long shot, sometimes. And that's good.
You see, I am not a preacher. Nor a teacher. I am simply Joe Black, citizen. A Black man fortunate enough to speak up and speak out, and reach thousands of people through the press and broadcast media.
Still, I am only a single voice, trying to remind you and me and all of us how important it is to constantly re-examine our attitudes and solutions to Black problems.
I have been labeled a "Tom" by some, because I don't relate to racism as strongly as some think I should. My answer to that is simply that I deeply believe in the importance of uniting people of good will more than I do dwelling on those things that divide them.
I don't believe that rap sessions like "BY THE WAY" have to be filled with hatred, profanity, and despair to jog our minds, our sensitivities, and our sensibilities.
I do hope, though, that when I communicate my way, more and more of us will give just a little more honest thought to what we are all doing—what we can do—to more realistically solve more of the problems facing the Black community.
If we get letters because of it—even those that disagree with what we say—we must be doing something right.
At least, someone out there is reading and thinking.

Community urged to attend important welfare hearing

All welfare and disability recipients are urged to attend a public hearing at 11 a.m. May 23 in the Conference Room of the State Department of Welfare concerning the restrictive regulations announced by Wayne A. Stanton, administrator of the Indiana Department of Public Welfare.

The conference room is located on the seventh floor of the State House.

Stanton announced eligibility requirements for welfare recipients which prohibit ownership of automobiles, campers, trailers, stereos and livestock if their worth exceeds $1,200.

Officials of the Welfare Rights Organization plan to meet at 9 a.m. Wednesday before the conference to educate the people about what Stanton is doing. Mrs. Ora Johnson, state coordinator of the Welfare Rights Organization, said "Come to the meeting Wednesday at 1505 N. Delaware first. Welfare recipients are not supposed to own cars more than $1200 and there will be a 20 to 35 per cent rate of deduction basic need chart," she said.

"We need more money in the welfare budget not less," she stressed. "If you have a hifi or stereo it is a possibility that you will have to sell them," Mrs. Johnson said.

"People may have to sell their colored television sets and carpeting," she said.

According to Mrs. Johnson, some mothers had these items before receiving aid from the Welfare. Why should they deprive their children from a television set?

The coordinator said taking television sets and phonographs will send youngsters into the city looking for trouble.

"No entertainment means more crime," she said.

Stanton said recipients of public assistance have been purchasing or acquiring property such as late model automobiles. He called the regulations "logical" and "reasonable" and that they will preserve the integrity of welfare in Indiana.

He said he has heard complaints that welfare recipients drive to agencies in relatively new automobiles to pick up their assistance.

The following list is exempt: General household furnishings. Items necessary for adequate living arrangements. Farm implements. Tools essential to income-producing activity or production of produce for home consumption.

Stanton suggests that people "trade down" a motor vehicle when he does not meet the new requirements and adjustments must be made within 90 days from the date of assistance if eligibility is to continue.

The Board members of the Indiana Department of Public Welfare voted unanimously to support Stanton's policy that he has worked on since his appointment by Gov. Otis R. Bowen, Jan. 5.

The board members are Robert M. Curless, president; Mrs. Marion M. Hilger of Columbus; James W. Burness Jr. of Indianapolis; Mrs. Arvilla M. Stanton of Gary (no relation to welfare head,) and Robert G. Watson Jr. of Vincennes.

WORDS THAT WIN are the words you use in your advertisement in The Recorder.

You and the Law

Legal Services Organization of Indianapolis

When can a person get a court-appointed attorney?

When a person cannot afford his own attorney he can ask the judge to appoint a lawyer to represent him. It used to be the law that unless you could go to jail for six months or more for the crime you were charged with, you were not entitled to a free attorney. THIS IS NO LONGER THE LAW.

In June, 1972 the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that a person must be given an attorney in any criminal case where there is any possibility of the person serving any time in jail as a result of the conviction.

If you are accused of a crime for which you could go to jail for even one day if convicted, and you cannot afford an attorney, you should tell the judge you want a lawyer for your case. The law says that the court must provide you with an attorney in these cases when you cannot afford your own.

JUVENILE COURT

Any juvenile brought into juvenile court is entitled to an attorney, regardless of the kind of case. If a child or its parents do not have a lawyer, or cannot afford one, they should ask for a lawyer. Ask the intake worker or the probation officer as soon as you speak with them. The sooner a lawyer is requested, the better.

WILLIAM D. BUTLER

Mr. William D. Butler, 86, 407 1/2 W. 30th, died May 11 in a local nursing home. Funeral services were held May 16 in St. Philip's Episcopal Church, of which he was a member, with burial in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Born in Jeffersonville, Mr. Butler had lived here 60 years and was a machinist at Detroit Diesel Allison Division of General Motors Corporation before retiring in 1955.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Billie Lee Butler; a son, Ira B. Butler of St. Louis, and a daughter, Mrs. Gladys Roney of Indianapolis.

NAVY ENLISTMENT: While his wife, Bettye Ann, looks on, Jerry W. Smartt is sworn into the Navy by Lt. Ted Daniels of the Navy Recruiting District Indianapolis. Smartt entered the Navy's advanced electronics field in exchange for a six-year enlistment. Smartt, son of Mrs. Flossie Bell Faulkner of this city, is a 1972 graduate of Shortridge High School. He has been living at 1017 N. Concord. He is scheduled to report May 30 for recruit training at the Naval Training Center in Great Lakes, Ill. He was enlisted by Navy recruiter Roosevelt Washington Jr. (Navy photo).

ALBERT JACKSON

Mr. Albert Jackson, 61, 3204 Graceland, died May 9 in Veterans Administration Hospital. Services were held May 14 in Jacobs Brothers Westside Chapel.

City native retiring after 35 years with Demopolis, Ala., school system

An Indianapolis native will retire this month after 35 years of teaching service to the Demopolis, Alabama, school system.

She is Mrs. Cora Ballard Brown Scott, who in 1929 graduated from Indiana University, Bloomington, with the distinction of being the first black woman to receive the B.S. degree from the School of Home Economics.

She is the sister of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Ballard of 3640 N. Colorado, Indianapolis.

Mrs. Scott, who worked her way through college, joined the staff of the U.S. Jones High School, Demopolis, in 1938. She started her career there teaching the 5th grade but was moved to junior high the following year to teach general science and social studies.

In 1948 she established the Home Economics Department in a three room private dwelling and in 1950 the department became vocational and the Vocational and the Augusta G. Eaton New Homemakers of America Department were dedicated. During the same year she set up the School Lunch Program and supervised it until she was transferred. Adult Sewing Classes were organized. These classes were a highly inspired group that worked hard to improve self and made many valuable contributions to the Jones High School program and its students.

The FHA organization sent Organizations express deep gratitude

The Federation of Associated Clubs, Inc., and Bethel AME Church's Senior Choir convey their deepest gratitude to the public and their members. The beautiful Spring Tea and the popular Fantasy of Fashions were an overwhelming success due to their support.

Pride was taken in presenting the Spring Tea with its many attractions and in presenting the Lady Lou original creations.

Noted pianist, Harry Campbell, and glamorous models were featured along with movies at the Fantasy of Fashions. The highlight of the movies were the fabulous white fur coat.

A date will be set aside for the showing of the movies later at the Federation. Mrs. Cora B. Jenkins is publicity director.

MRS. CORA B.B. SCOTT

delegates to district, state and national meetings. This chapter had one national officer and held more district and state offices than any other chapter in the district.

In 1965 the FHA and NHA merged and the organization became known as the FHA. In 1970 the High School Department of U.S. Jones High School was discontinued and the school became known as Eastside Elementary School. Mrs. Scott was then transferred to the Demopolis High School where, for the past three years, she has been connected with the Home Economics Department basic home economics and home and family living along with serving as one of the advisors to the FHA chapter.

At this school she has enjoyed working with the principal teachers and students. During her last year she was made very happy by one of the DHS-FHAers, Evelyn Annette Scott, being elected state FHA reporter. Evelyn is one of the two black girls ever to hold a state FHA office.

Mrs. Scott is a member of Gilfield Baptist Church of Old Springhill, Alabama, where she serves in the following capacities: member of the board of trustees, Sunday School teacher, supervisor of Baptist Training Union, president of the Missionary Society, and assistant secretary of the church. She has served as historian and later treasurer for 32 years of the Uniontown District Women's Convention. At present, she is an instructor in the First Mt. Pleasant District Sunday School and a D.B.T.U. Congress. She also is corresponding secretary of the First Mt. Pleasant District Women's Convention.

She has done graduate work at Tuskegee Institute and attended Vocational Home Economics Workshops. She holds membership in the following organizations -- Indiana University Alumni Association, Demopolis Education Association, Alabama Vocational Association, and the American Vocational Association.

For years she served as treasurer of the Alabama Vocational Teachers Association-Home Economics Section. In 1970 this organization bestowed upon her a certificate for life membership in the American Vocational Association. She is constantly contributing her time and finance to various worthy community projects.

The Demopolis community has benefited from her benevolence but before coming to Demopolis she taught home economics and served as assistant matron of the dining hall at Lincoln Academy, Kings Mountain, N.C. She joined the faculty of Lincoln Normal School at Marion, Alabama, in the fall of 1931.

During her tenure at Lincoln she was instrumental in setting up the Perry County Negro Health Week. She rendered invaluable service to the community during the tornado periods of 1932 and 1933.

In the summer of 1936 she was the victim of a severe attack of rheumatism which is still her constant companion. In the fall of 1936 she joined the faculty of Georgia Normal and Agricultural College at Albany, Ga., serving as home economics teacher, dean of girls, supervisor of the laundry and acting nurse.

She was married to the late Rev. P.J. Brown, Negro County Agent of Hale County, Ala. Some years after his death she married Mr. Isaac Scott, a farmer who died in 1964.

MISS WILMA JEAN BAILEY

New volunteer Army now accepting married women

The new Volunteer Army, in which women will play a larger, more prestigious role has opened enlistments to married women who may never have thought about combining their home-making skills with a profession at military career that offers excellent pay, free medical and dental care, low insurance rates, and fine opportunities for education and travel to exotic areas most people only read about.

Back in 1942 when the Women's Army Corps was first organized as a volunteer auxiliary to back up America's fighting men in World War II, the only jobs considered for women were in administrative or medical fields.

Thirty-one years later, because of society's changes in general attitudes and the fact that women have proven themselves capable in many civilian fields, the Army now offers training for women in some 434 of the 485 job skills the Army needs -- in every field, in fact except those directly combat-related.

Whether she wants to be a truck driver, a linguist, radio coder, or information specialist a WAC may request this training at a specialized Army school if she is qualified and there is an opening in the school of her choice.

The Women's Army Corps is still a volunteer force with a non combat mission. It is expected to expand from its present 14,000 to 24,000 women by 1977.

according to Brigadier General Mildred C. Bailey, the Army's second lady -- general who directs the WAC. She sees this figure as a floor, not a ceiling, and anticipates continuous increase in the numbers of women who can be used interchangeably with men in as many as 150,000 positions in the smaller more professional Army now being realigned.

"It is only natural that women should share the responsibilities for their nation's defense, the same as men," B.G. Bailey pointed out recently while visiting in Indiana. "There are many qualified women who just happen to be married and who can do a good job for the Army. The experience they get while serving their three-year enlistments will make them more valuable to a civilian employer later."

WAC enlistees must be high school graduates. They draw the same pay as their male counterparts, have equal opportunities for advancement, and are subject to overseas assignments. They may also enlist especially for an overseas area and be assigned there after completing eight weeks of basic training at Ft. McClellan, Alabama, and advanced individual training later.

Local Army recruiter SSG Harold Chrapowicz at the Army Recruiting Station, 152 N. Delaware St. (Tel. 633-8410), can provide more information about the new openings for married women.

Miss Wilma Jean Bailey and Aaron Thomas will wed Saturday, May 26 in the Mount Olive Baptist Church.

The bride-elect daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Russell Bailey Jr., resides at 824 N. California and is employed by Delux Check Printers, Inc.

The groom-to-be is the son of Mrs. James Williams and Aaron Thomas Jr., of Indianapolis and is employed by Szabo Food Services, Western Electric. Both are 1969 graduates of Crispus Attucks High School. Maid of honor will be Miss Rita Michelle Theadford. Bridesmaid will be Franetta Brown of Covington, Ky. The flower girl will be Barbara Ann Bailey.

Best man will be Michael Westbrook. Groomsman will be Chester Thomas David Burnett, and Stevie Thomas. Ringbearer will be Robert Massey.

The couple will reside at 3301 1/2 N. Capitol.

The Federation was saddened at the death of Mr. Andrew Ramsey, a good member and staunch supporter of the organization. He was in the process of writing The History of the Federation of Associated Clubs, through a very liberal grant from The Eli Lilly and Company Foundation.

Miss Mary Ragland will entertain her many guest attending reception to be held in the Ryan Room of the FAC on Saturday, May 19th, from 7 to 11 p.m. and on Sunday, May 20th, The King Solomon Baptist Church will sponsor a dinner for its singing group from 12 to 4 p.m.

Happy Birthday to our following members for the week May 17: Mrs. Clifton M. Dickerson, 2724 Paris Ave.; Atty. Willard B. Ransom, 6259 Grandview; Mr. Roscoe Polin, 4302 Clarendon Rd.; Mrs. E. V. Carson, 609 W. 30th St.; Mrs. Gloria Hatcher, 2837 Guilford; May 24th, Mrs. Priscilla Dean Lewis Weathers, 2734 Boulevard Place.

Reservations for the Mexican trip must be made right away or the trip may have to be cancelled next month. If you plan to go call Mr. S.W. Jones at his home or the FAC office.

A slight interior remodeling is taking place in the small auditorium. Come out and see for yourself, and give us a push.

Rare bits from Adeline

About buying ham

Preparation-wise, there are only two kinds of ham -- cook-before-eating hams and fully-cooked hams. Cook-before-eating hams have been cured, smoked and usually heated to an internal temperature of 140 degrees (F.). Hams labeled anything other than "ready-to-eat" or "fully-cooked" are the cook-before-eat variety. These hams require 18 to 25 minutes cooking time per pound at 325 degrees before they can be safely eaten.

Fully-cooked hams have been cured, smoked and cooked to an internal temperature of at least 155 degrees. They can be served cold without further heating but will be tastier if cooked 10 to 15 minutes per pound at 325 degrees.

There are three most common styles of hams are bone-in, semi-boneless and boneless. When the label says "bone-in ham" with no qualifying statement about bones, you can be fairly sure the aitch and shank bones are intact. All other things being equal -- amount of skin removed, length of shank, extent of cooking, degree of trim -- bone-in hams cost less than other whole hams. It will yield 2 1/2 servings per pound. Semi-boneless hams usually have had the aitch bone removed, but the shank and leg bones are still intact. Semi-boneless hams have slightly less waste than bone-in hams will give about three servings per pound. Boneless (rolled) hams are about 85 per cent lean meat. A pound of boneless ham will serve four people. These yield figures are all based on a serving being 3 1/2 ounces of cooked lean meat is adequate. Hams are hind legs of the pork carcass. The narrower part nearest the foot is called the shank. The wider part is referred to as the butt. If the ham is simply cut in half and sold with the center slices remaining, the wider part is sold as a butt half of ham. This is the most desirable half because it is meatier. For this reason, but halves generally sell for more per pound than shank halves or whole hams.

When the ham is cut in half and center slices are removed, the wider part is labeled "butt portion" and the narrower part is labeled "shank portion." Of the two, the butt portion is more desirable because it has less fat and skin.

M.A. in 1972.

During her stay at Ann Arbor she received an interview from Chrysler, which resulted in the offer of her present position at the Kennedy Space Center. She also received another job interview from the U.S. Naval Base at Panama City.

"My mother and grandfather thought Chrysler offered a better future, so I accepted the job," she said. "Now, they are very enthusiastic about me working in the space program." Linda also met her fiancé, Edred Mobley while at Michigan. A U of M engineering graduate, he now works for TRW, Inc. and is involved in the launching of unmanned space satellites from the Air Force side of Cape Kennedy.

The two plan to be married June 30 and reside in Cocoa, Fla.

Black engineer becomes first woman to 'powerup' spacecraft

LINDA GAINER, first and only woman to power-up a rocket on the launch pad at the Kennedy Space Center, stands in front of the Saturn 1B/Skylab launch vehicle. The 24-year-old test engineer is a key member of Chrysler's S-B launch crew.

KENNEDY SPACE CENTER-- Linda Gainer has been a member of Chrysler Corporation's Saturn 1B launch crew for only 10 months, but she already has a space first to her credit.

The 24-year-old test engineer is the first woman in the history of the John F. Kennedy Space Center to power-up a space vehicle on the launch pad. The launch term "powering-up" is a highly complicated computerized procedure which determines if all parts and components in the Saturn 1B launch vehicle were operating correctly.

"I got the opportunity to run the test last summer, after the Saturn 1B arrived at the Kennedy Space Center in the Skylab mission. After I was certified, my fellow engineers wanted me to monitor a power-up test checkout because they knew no woman had ever done it before," she said.

Linda is one of 175 Chrysler engineers and technicians at the Kennedy Space Center who are checking out the Saturn 1B in preparation for the Skylab mission rescheduled for May 14-15. One the day following the launch of Skylab into earth orbit, a Saturn 1B will send three astronauts to join the giant workshop for 28 days.

During the Saturn 1B/Skylab countdown, Linda will work in NASA's launch control center as a troubleshooting recorder. Her job will be to record and expedite the processing of any electrical problem which might occur during the critical period of the launch countdown.

In addition to her regular launch duties, Linda is attending daily classes at the KSC so that she will be fully certified to read a computer language called ATOLL (standing for Acceptance Test Or Launch Language). Knowing the ATOLL will permit her to conduct simulated tests in all areas of the Saturn/Skylab ground network system. Chrysler and NASA require full certification for all launch engineers and technicians involved in the Skylab program.

Although Linda is classified by Chrysler as a test engineer, her background and education are closely tied to computers and mathematics.

She credits Roosevelt Harvey, her mathematics teacher at Rosenwald High School in Panama City, Fla., for stimulating her career interests.

"I always was an 'A' student in science and mathematics, and Mr. Harvey encouraged me to study one or the other in college," she said.

She enrolled at Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn., as a mathematics major in 1966. Three years later, following completion of her junior year, she was selected for special summer training in computer programming at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

"When I returned to Fisk to start my senior year, the University established a special computer course for a few of us who worked at Oak Ridge. Only four of us completed the course," she said.

Linda's outstanding record at Fisk helped her graduate with honors and qualified for a mathematics graduate fellowship from the University of Michigan. She received her

Translating the application form

Many job seekers miss out on employment opportunities by filling out an application in a slipshod manner, giving incomplete, untruthful misleading information.

The application deserves your serious attention, for in most cases, it will convey your first impression. It's up to you to make it a good one. There are many different kinds of application forms, primarily seeking the same basic information. The following are suggestions on answering some of those questions appearing most frequently:

NAME-- Give your full name plus middle name if you have one, maiden name if married, and any name changes you may have had. Failing to have an applicant's proper name creates an unnecessary problem in tracing background and history, and can result in a delay in processing or even a discarded application.

DATE OF BIRTH-- Give the exact month, date and year of your birth. Some who have given false ages elsewhere by adding on or taking off a few years feel they must continue doing so. It is hardly worth the effort as a close examination of your history will likely reveal your true age and your attempts at deception merely makes a poor impression.

PROOF OF AGE-- Present your birth certificate if available. If not, obtain proof as follows: Those born in Marion County may apply at Health Corporation, Room 841, City-County Building. If born in the state of Indiana, you can go to the Indiana State Board of Health, 1330 W. Michigan. If born in other states, write to either the Bureau of Vital Statistics, State Board of Health, city hall or local board of health in the area where you were born.

For those who are not sure where birth records are kept, to find out write to your local newspaper, county medical society or office of the state governor. There are some who have no birth certificates; substitutes are baptismal records, a notation in an old Bible, early family school or local records, a statement from attending physician or census records.

MARITAL STATUS-- If you have been divorced, never been married, widow or widower you are considered single. You are married whether you're with your mate or separated. In any case, give an honest straight forward answer.

LOWEST SALARY YOU WILL ACCEPT-- The natural inclination is the state the salary quoted for the position applied for. It might be advisable to state a lower salary, thus increasing your chances for employment. Perhaps you do not have the qualifications for the job you seek, or there may not be an immediate opening. By stating a lower salary, you may be considered for a job carrying less responsibility and/or an existing opening with the chance of in-service training leading to advancement. Insisting on the highest salary where no opening exist, eliminates your application for further consideration.

EXPERIENCE-- Prepare in advance dates, places, names and addresses of employment and employers. Names and exact titles of immediate supervisors, your position, salary, job description and reasons for leaving. Be honest, don't falsify or exaggerate your record.

EDUCATION-- Prepare in advance, to avoid conflicting times and dates, names, locations, grades of schools attended, dates completed, degrees or certificates acquired, vocational, business or institutes attended, and special courses taken.

SPECIAL SKILLS-- Here is your chance to list your special abilities in operating or using any kind of equipment, tool or machinery, special license or certificate you hold, special accomplishments, citations or recognitions you have received, knowledge of other languages, etc.

REFERENCES-- Names, businesses, addresses and occupations of at least three persons, who are unrelated and not former supervisors. They should be people who have a definite knowledge of your character and qualifications. It is always considerate and to your advantage to check before using anyone's name as a reference. In doing so, they will be more favorably responsive to inquiries regarding you.

Please direct your questions and comments pro and/or con to: Vocational Educational Counselor, Maury Rigg NHB Center, 1917 W. Morris, Indianapolis 46221.

Open Pit Barbecue Sauce recipe tips

1. Before barbecuing spare ribs cover with water, simmer for about one-half hour; then bake or grill the ribs, brushing frequently with OPEN PIT BARBECUE SAUCE.

2. When preparing pork chops try simmering them in a skillet in OPEN PIT BARBECUE SAUCE thinned with water. They come out tender, moist, and so flavorful.

3. To add a spicy zest to your favorite meatloaf, add a small amount of OPEN PIT to the meat mixture. Bake frequently with more sauce while baking. The results are sensational.

4. The lowly frankfurter gets new respect at the family dining table when split lengthwise and dressed with a teaspoon of OPEN PIT. Place it in the broiler until browned -- the kids'll love it.

5. Remember OPEN PIT when stirring up the family's favorite stew. Add about a teaspoon of Open Pit to each cup of stew for an unusual taste teaser.

6. A good use for that leftover roast is to heat canned gravy with OPEN PIT and diced or sliced meat. Serve piping hot on split rolls-um!

Bond added. Black candidates won nomination to posts ranging from alderman to county commissioner and it is remarkable that in Clarksdale, Miss., a city with a clear majority of white voters, one black alderman was safely named and a second will participate in a run-off election with his nearest opponent.

The Mississippi victory of two-thirds of the black candidates supported by SEF clearly supports our premise that a new South is emerging and that supporting black candidates for election to public office is a positive and dynamic step in strengthening our entire democratic process," declared Yancy Martin, SEF Executive Director.

While two blacks won the fight to participate in run-off elections for mayor in Shaw and Woodville, there were charges of a number of election irregularities. In Arcola, for example, where there is a clear black majority and many blacks are registered, two black incumbents were renominated while two new black candidates were defeated in what has been called a questionable counting procedure. An aldermanic race is being contested in Jonestown and glaring irregularities involving faulty identification of candidates and slates on ballots and other gross procedural errors were noted in Jonestown and Shaw.

According to SEF National Political Director, Paul Cobb, who was an on-the-spot observer in several counties and cities during the primary elections, "It is quite apparent that some of the irregularities noted were the direct result of malfeasance and malice. When you have a white slate receiving what is tantamount to all the black votes cast and the black slate receiving all the white votes in Mississippi, something has obviously gone awry with the polling system. All candidates in contests where irregularities have been noted are being encouraged to challenge the election results. They will receive the full support of SEF," he added.

The Southern Elections Fund has made financial contributions to the campaigns of some 71 black men and women running in the Mississippi primaries and in the forthcoming general elections June 5. This is the largest involvement ever made in a single state by SEF which is dedicated to providing financial aid and technical assistance to black and liberal candidates for local public office in the eleven southern states of the old Confederacy. SEF has contributed to the campaigns of some 350 black and white candidates for office since its founding in 1969.

nd. Aman who told a Recorder reporter that he witnessed the shooting, said been shot by one of about a half-a-dozen frillows who caught him prowling around several automobiles in the parking lot of an Indiana Avenue night club.

"One guy came out of the club and said something to the man who was shot and then four or five other men came out of the club and the whole group started toward the fellow that had been looking in the cars," the witnesses told the Recorder.

"Just then the man (later identified as Williams) pulled a gun out of his pocket and held the group at bay while he backed away from them," the witness recalled.

He (Williams) backed off a few feet, then put the gun back in his pocket and turned to run," the man said, "just a one of the men who had come out of the nightclub pistol of his own, aimed it with both hands and fired a single shot which struck Williams in the middle of his back.

The bullet knocked him down but he jumped up and snatched his own gun back out of his pocket as though he was going to return the exchange shot. With his assailants but he was only able to fire a shot into the air," the witness continued.

"Then (Williams) turned and half running, half stumbling he managed to make his way down the alley to the spot where he collapsed in front of 520 W. North.

Late Wednesday evening, police homicide investigators were questioning patrons and employees of the night club in an effort to get a lead in the identity of the killer.

In the shooting last Friday, Patrolman Larry said "It was a little above average day-to-day happenings on his job, after having listened to Henry L. Bridgeforth, 65, of 4106 Meadows Drive, spill out a bizarre tale about just having shot and killed his wife.

Patrolman Lutes had stopped Bridgeforth's 1966 Buick at 8:19 a.m. last Friday after having clocked the automobile traveling at 46 mph in the 30 mph zone.

"I wasn't sure whether the guy was a crackpot or what," Office Lutes said later, "but I radioed headquarters and they dispatched a car to 2209 N. Capitol, where police investigators found the body of Betty J. Bridgeforth, 42, sprawled in the driveway at that location.

Police homicide detectives said Mrs. Bridgeforth, who had been rooming at the Capitol Avenue address, since being separated from her husband about three months ago, had been shot four times in the back with a .38-caliber pistol.

Following the shooting, Bridgeforth drove to his brother's home at 1807 N. Dexter and left the murder weapon which was later recovered by police.

He had just left his brother's home when he was stopped by the police radar unit.

Capt. W. Robert Greene, head of the police homicide and robbery branch, said that Bridgeforth "evidently had waited outside the house where his wife had been rooming and shot her when she came out to leave for work."

"All four shots were in the back," the veteran homicide investigator told The Recorder following the incident.

"She must have been running in an effort to get away from him," Capt. Greene said, noting that Mrs. Bridgeforth's body was found at the rear of the residence.

Homicide investigators said this week that Bridgeforth has so far refused to disclose what triggered the shooting although friends of the couple reported that he (Bridgeforth) had been "pestering his wife to come back to him."

Funeral services for Mrs. Bridgeforth were held Tuesday at the Summers Funeral Chapel, with burial in New Crown Cemetery.

nary action although the department regrets the incident.

Davenport reportedly was shot during a struggle over Crenshaw's service revolver, according to police, and the former was charged by the department with assault and battery with intent to kill a police officer.

Crenshaw lived on only two doors away from Davenport at 3360 Broadway. The incident started when Crenshaw arrested Ralph C. Davenport, 17, on charges of taunting a policeman and disorderly conduct at 34th and College shortly before 5 p.m. May 10.

Police reported that the youth's father came to the juvenile section of police headquarters and grabbed for his revolver and both were holding it when the shots rang out that left Davenport mortally wounded.

Mrs. Nicy Davenport, 38, said that after she and her husband left the second floor elevator, her husband hit Crenshaw with his fist and the officer pulled his gun and started shooting.

After the shooting police charged Mrs. Davenport with interfering with a policeman and was handcuffed.

Miss Sylvia Byrd, 16, 2608 N. Guilford who witnessed young Davenport's arrest said the youth was standing on the corner when Crenshaw stopped for a traffic light. Miss Byrd said the youth did not say anything but Crenshaw said the youth called him names.

The police department conducted a survey of 14 homes in the area and determined that Crenshaw was a "model citizen."

Other witnesses at the shooting agreed with Crenshaw's side of the story. Crenshaw has moved from the neighborhood.

members who have become so delinquent or stopped paying dues.

He also cited the lack of support from both black and white communities. Wilson said Scenic View was "unique" because he had 18 per cent white membership.

James T. Fowler, an original board member of the Sportsman's Country Club, "We set our club up on information obtained from white clubs in the area. Our representatives talked to them and learned what they could.

There was a tremendous strain trying to pay a skeleton staff and operation. "We made the mistake of selling life memberships," he said. The life member would make one payment of $2,500 and could not be charged monthly.

Fowler said he left affiliation with the club when it was thrown into the receivership of Rep. Ray Crowe-R-Ind. A great amount of jealousy developed between the people who were able to support the club and those who would like to be members but were not financially able.

The rumors continued to exist and then it became hard to sell memberships, he said. Board members then went into their pockets and pulled out about $40,000 which they never got a penny back as a last-ditch effort to save the club.

Meanwhile, Albert Smith Jr., vice-president of AFNB, said Tuesday that the Scenic View proposal was "in the air right now." He said he has been out of town since April 27 and would have to meet with William I. Spencer, parks director, who is out of town and won't be back until later this month.

"He and I will get together, long with club officials," said Smith, "and determine what our next course will be."

Shotgun confiscated by police

TWO 17-year-old near-Northside youths face conspiracy to commit a felony violation of the 1935 Firearms Act, and possible federal charges in connection with their arrests last week outside a near-downtown pizza shop, police said.

The youths were arrested at 11 p.m. last Thursday when they were observed loitering around the corner of Massachusetts and Park close to Randy's Pizza by Indianapolis police officers. When a police stopped the youths one noticed a large bulge under the shirt of one suspect. Police said a spanish made 12 gauge shotgun was confiscated with a sawed off 8 inch barrel and pistol grip welded near the front.

Employees at the pizza shop told police the pair had made several trips past the store observing.

very division, Jones returned to the scene a few moments later and spotted Brown standing in the yard in front of his house.

According to witnesses, Jones, sped over the curb, across the yard, striking the startled victim before he could move.

Brown was pinned beneath the car and "he (Jones) just kept on driving - across another yard and back down into the street," one witness told police investigators.

Police said Brown was drug more than 100 feet beneath the automobile. Most of his clothing had been ripped away.

Jones, who was arrested at the scene, later told police, "It just seemed like the right thing to do."

Both Petty and Brown were rushed to Methodist Hospital but Brown was later transferred to General where he died.

He had been charged with assault and battery with intent to kill in connection with the shooting of Perry.

Aspirin: miracle drug or unrecognized killer?

Everyday Americans swallow 20-30 tons or about 36 million tablets of aspirin, according to the April report from the Drug Education Center, 3612 Washington Blvd.

New research is showing scientists that it is both a major miracle drug and an unrecognized killer.

Denis Raftopoulos addresses Witnesses public lecture

Over 2,000 persons attended the public lecture by Denis Raftopoulos during the semi-annual circuit assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses held recently in Terre Haute.

One program featured the baptism of 88 persons.

James Burks of the Meridian congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses stated that the local Witnesses were helped to be more efficient in their house to house missionary work.

"Most people," Raftopoulos pointed out, "are distracted by man's futile attempts to establish a fair and just government. However, this task can never be accomplished by man due to his imperfections. Only our Creator can provide the rulership needed to set the world at peace."

and looked up "just as a sheet of flames came rolling in off the back porch."

Both Mrs. Smith and Nicholas escaped the blazing inferno by crawling through a broken window. They were unable to rescue little Duane who had been sleeping in a rear bedroom.

At the time of the blaze, fire investigators estimated that the temperature inside the house "must have reached 2,000 degrees."

"The heat was so intense that it even melted the glass and the aluminum storm door," Lieut. Eddie Rogers, an investigator in the fire department's arson squad told The Recorder at the time.

Funeral services for Mrs. Smith, 36, were held Wednesday, in the King & King Funeral Home, with burial in New Crown Cemetery.

A native of Clay County, Mississippi, Mrs. Smith had lived in Indianapolis a little over a year.

Survivors include two other sons, Bartholomew and Daniel Smith, two daughters, the Misses Linda and Brenda Smith, and her mother, Mrs. Magnolia Gibson.

ChurchWomen
United closes with a prayer

As we come to the close of the fall and winter season of Church Women United, we will continue on our way together as "Hand Touches Hand."

We have chosen for the theme for this year "Christian Women Building For God With Unity," with more than 30 million women over the nation touching hands. Let us worship-ship and witness-listen, respond-learn and act. We have had a pleasant relationship with so many wonderful christian women.

Our last ecumenical service, before vacation is Monday, June 4, from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m., Womack Memorial Christian Episcopal Church, 4401 Carrollton Avenue where the Rev. W.D. Copeland is pastor, and Mrs. J. Clinton Hoggard is chairman.

Executive Board meeting will be held Monday, May 11, Interchurch Center 1100 W. 42nd Street. More than 22 volunteer committees have done a tremendous job. We do hope that during vacation you will keep the Prayer For The Complacent in mind -- O God, make us discontent with things the way they are in the world. In our lives, Teach us how to blush again, For the Tawdry deals, the arrogant-but-courteous prejudice, the snicker, the leers, the good food and drink which makes us too weary to repent, the flattery given and received, our willing use of rights and privileges other men are unfairly denied; Make us notice the stains when people get spilled on. Make us care about the sium child downtown, the misfit at work, the people crammed into mental hospitals, the men the youth and women behind bars, Jar our complacence; Expose our excesses; Get us involved in the life of our common unity, and give us integrity once more. (From Creative Brooding—Robert Rains) Grace Burton (Mrs. H.L. Burton is president).

The committee on nominations submits the following nominating committee for 1974: Mrs. J. Solomon Benn, III, Mrs. Lovel Ward Fellows, Mrs. Edward Burrus, Mrs. Katherine Dabner; new officers were also elected, first vice-president, Major Phyllis Vanoedall; assistant treasurer, Mrs. John A. The city and church has lost a dedicated leader and a champion fighter of rights for all people in the passing of Andrew W. Ramsey. He did so much to help so many young people who are now taking their rightful place in the world.

He was faithful to his church and a dependable person. Thousands enjoyed his column in The Recorder each week. To his family, we offer our deepest sympathy.

Congratulations to Mrs. Esther Dass from Pakistan who graduated on Sunday, May 13, from Indiana University at Bloomington.

Your support is needed for one of our ministers and pastors overseas who work alone, laboring for the Lord amid the hardships of small isolated villages and the cold hostility of large pagan cities. It takes only $15 for a pastor. Please give assistance by sending a check for $15 to World Vision International, P.O. Box 0, Pasadena, Calif., 91109. This will help him have a place to stay and buy food.

William Marshall guest lecturer at Florida State

Distinguished actor William Marshall, star of American International Pictures' "Blacula" and the soon-to-be-released sequel, "Scream, Blacula, Scream," has participated for the past week (May 7-1) as guest lecturer/consultant for the Black Festival Week at Florida State University at Tallahassee.

As the special guest of the school's Black Student Education and Cultural Center, and its director, Audrey Randolph, Marshall expounded on the theme "Black Culture in the '70s," with particular emphasis on the role of blacks in the entertainment industry. The Communications Department under the leadership of Dr. Donald Unger Assistant Dean, and the students -- who were enthralled by Marshall's role as Blacula -- have petitioned school authorities for an honorary degree to be bestowed on him.

Believe Me.. When I Tell You

BY BOB WOMACK SR.

Editor's Note: ... The column you are now reading, ought to have been read last week ("Mother's Day"), which makes what you read this week, stuff you should have already read... Or something like that... Dig! "God made a wonderful mother,"

A mother who never grows old. He made her smile of the sunshine and he moded her heart of pure gold.

In her eyes he placed bright shining stars. In her cheeks, fair roses you see,

God made a wonderful mother. And he gave that dear mother to me.

NANCY WILSON, one of America's foremost blues songstress with a heart of jazz, became a national recording star, almost overnight in 1958. She was born in Columbus, Ohio.

During her early struggle, she appeared at the Columbus Station WTVN-TV, also as featured vocalist with Rusty Bryant's band; nite club engagements; benefit performances at various events during her teen and high school days.

Her spectacular presentation has been hailed the second best to the one and only Ella Fitzgerald. Many of her Capitol Records have become collector's items.

EARTHA KITT, sexploited herself to stardom. A relatively unknown Harlem club warbler until the late '40's, she sought greener fields in Europe, where the fabulous producer -- actor Orson Wells "discovered" her. After playing opposite Eartha as Helen of Troy in "Faust," he called her "the most exciting woman in the world." Result: - Princes and millionaires sought her affections during an exciting European tour and a featured role in the Broadway musical success "New Faces." In the movies; TV; on records and in clubs, Eartha sells only one thing -- tantalizing sensuousness, which she radiates without cracking a smile.

LOCAL FEMALE VOCALISTS There are not too many so-called good experienced female singers here at the present time. One can almost count them on one hand. Those who might have a chance at stardom are not willing to apply themselves in learning and gaining experience in this great art. Especially, the ones who have fine daytime jobs and cats paying their bills.

Recently, we recalled that a certain unknown vocalist was hired with one of the local combos. The young lady in question had a very nice voice but couldn't put a song over to the public. The chick had the looks, clothes, etc. (smile). In face, everything to work with. However, she made the following mistakes - started dating the sidemen in the combo; wouldn't listen to advice given her by the bandleader; played and joked on the stand with the cats while the crew was blowing.

She was eventually fired; tried to obtain her job back by going over the leader's head to the manager of the bistro, but failed in her demands. "Madam Queen," will never advance in the vocal department here or anywhere in the world, unless she makes a great change within herself... Believe Me!

THE HERRON SCHOOL of Art is currently taking enrollments for the children's summer art classes. The program is being sponsored by Herron and funded by the Community Service Project. Classes can accommodate as many as 100 youngsters from ages 5-14. DUKE AIRS JAZZ VIEWS A recent guest on a nationwide TV show, Bandleader Duke Ellington, spoke out on the all important subject of "jazz."

Credit for its popularity, he feels, should go to Paul Whiteman, who "made a lady out of jazz and started people taking her into their homes."

"People have come to recognize jazz as the folk music of America. America stands for freedom, and jazz depends upon freedom of expression." The maestro gave the Europeans full credit for their acceptance of this type of music back in the days when Americans considered it too low brow to be taken seriously. But, he says, -- "Europeans take it too seriously, and you have to have a good sense of humor before you're a good jazz musician!"

Asked to name two outstanding performers in the field, Ellington came up with the names of Sidney Bechet and Louis Armstrong. And as he rightly should, the host said, "Duke, I'd like to cast my vote for you." ... Right On!

BRUCE LEE DEMONSTRATES his unique mastery of Karate and Kung-Fu in "Fists Of Fury," now showing at the Lafayette Road, Shadeland; South 31 and National. Saga of "Charley One Eye" now at Uptown theater

Paramount Pictures' "Charley - One-Eye" starring Richard Roundtree, Roy Thinnes and Nigel Davenport, is now showing at the Uptown Theater. The David Paradine Film Production is a dramatic allegory focusing on two outcasts to whom violence is part of survival, drawn together by chance and struggling to exist in the destructive world around them.

One is a black deserter savagely pursued by a bounty hunter, the other a half-caste Indian rejected by his own people.

futility of two drifters seeking to make some space in this world for themselves.

International personality David Frost was Executive Producer of "Charley-One-Eye" with James Swann as Producer. Kenneth Talbot served as Director of Photography and Tim Hampton as Associate Producer.

"Charley - One - Eye" is a saga about a world of violence and the men who generate it and are ultimately destroyed by it.

PHILADELPHIA---The jazz world was stunned early this week when they learned of the death of Elmer Snowden, top-rated jazz musician, who became famous during the 1920's. He died Monday in Presbyterian Hospital after a long illness. He was 72 years old.

He was a native of Baltimore and was considered one of the greatest banjo players of that period. He switched to the guitar as it became the popular instrument.

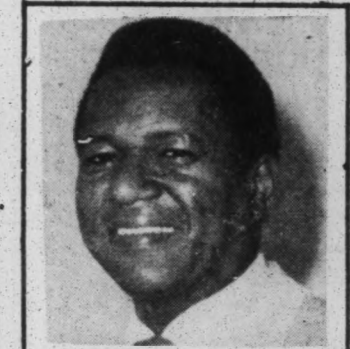

The great Duke Ellington played with the Snowden group back in 1921, when he brought his band to New York City. The band known as the Washingtonians, later became Duke Ellington's orchestra.

Some of the country's top musicians, and band leaders once played in his band. ... Including Count Basie, Claude Hopkins, Jimmy Lunceford, Rex Stewart, Roy Eldridge, Dickie Wells, Bennie Carter and Chick Webb.

Wendell Parker is a graduate of Attucks and received his B.S. degree from Indiana University with a major in education. While at IU, he was president of the Human Relations Commission and was responsible for bringing the late Rev. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. there for his first IU appearance.

He was also a Y.M.C.A. cabinet member and belonged to the Falcon Club Honorary, Wesley Foundation and Sigma Theta Epsilon.

He has done graduate study under scholarships at DePauw University, Brigham Young and Butler. In August of 1972 he received his master's degree from Butler with a major in special education. While serving in the U.S. Air Force in the medical corps in the Alutian Islands, Mr. Parker began a music and poetry writing episode. Since then he has had four songs published and recorded, and a fifth song to win a first prize in a Capitol Records song writing contest. Many of his songs have been sung locally by Flo Garvin in leading city night clubs. He also has two volumes of poetry and prose ready for publication

Editorials and Opinions

"Power concedes nothing without a demand — it never did and it never will. Find out just what people will submit to, and you've found out the exact amount of injustice and wrong which will be imposed upon them. This will continue until they resist, either with words or blows or both. The limits of tyrants are prescribed by the endurance of those whom they oppress."

Andrew W. Ramsey

The death of Andrew W. Ramsey is a substantial loss to our city and state.

He was a challenging force to all injustice, wherever he saw it.

His crusades through the pages of The Indianapolis Recorder were always open to him—his opinions and his concerns.

No effort was made to deny him his voice.

His column, "The Voice of the Gallery"—and he named it—indicated that he never considered himself a leader, though he was. He only sought to voice those philosophies of justice for the common man.

Especially to his credit, his mind was never befuddled as a status, that was not his hang-up. He knew and believed that educated blacks should use that resource to the interest of the black community. He said, and believed, that group was growing.

He showed enormous personal courage in initiating the desegregation suit against the Indianapolis School Board, by whom he was employed.

Again he laid his job on the line for what he thought was right.

As president of both branches of the NAACP, city and state, he gave of his time and money in the cause.

A real giant has fallen and his pen has been silenced.

Should the public know?

"If the President is involved," said Melvin Laird, "it is better for the nation not to know." The sentiment is innocent and pathetic, like an ostrich, head in the sand. George McGovern has said almost the same thing. He wants to believe in what Mr. Nixon calls the "integrity of the White House." But isn't the White House a place where the President sleeps? If we are to respect the office of the Presidency, is it not essential to ask the man who holds it be respected, too?

People are saying glibly, "This has always been done." It is not true. Who was the last President who talked to a judge about elevating him to high office while the judge was trying a case in which the President's reputation was at stake?

Let us assume for a moment that Richard Nixon did not know anything about the spying and bugging and fraud; about the washing of money, the burning of records, the illegality of contributions, the cash in his office safe. Let us assume that for 10 months everybody lied to him, his principal assistants, his best friends, his attorney general, his official counsel, his personal attorney.

These are difficult almost impossible assumptions. But let us make them. Have we therefore preserved the "integrity of the White House?" Have we preserved the illusion that "this has always been done?"

Who was the last attorney general who sat in on three meetings to discuss wiretapping his political opponents and said nothing about it to his chief?

Who was the last presidential assistant who hired men to burglarize somebody's psychiatric records?

Would J. Edgar Hoover have burned evidence of wrongdoing in order to cover up for a white House aide?

Who was the last President who permitted his campaign to pile up a $10 million to $15 million surplus, and his aides to dispose of $1 million in cash?

Making all the assumptions it is possible to make on behalf of Richard Nixon, it is nevertheless true that he has presided over the most corrupt administration in American history.

Not the Ulysses Grant administration nor the Warren Harding administration can hold a candle to it. Presidential appointees in both of those administrations stole money. But they did not attempt to destroy the system. It is nonsense to say that what Mr. Nixon's men did has been done before. What they did was a historic first. In the process they make the President an accomplice or a fool.

In the speech he made in his defense, Richard Nixon never said, in so many words, "I was not involved." It is impossible not to wonder why. What are we to make of this statement?

"I asked those conducting the investigation whether there was any reason to believe that members of my administration were any way involved."

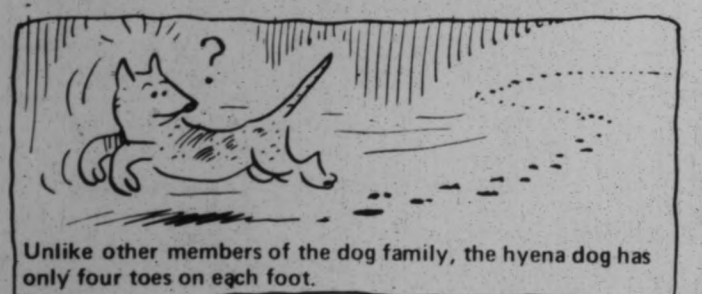

Here is a man about to enter a campaign who learns that his campaign aides have been caught in a burglary. It is not logical to suppose that he might ask whether anybody was involved? Why would he ask, instead, whether there are reasons to believe anybody was involved?

The President's recent speech did not take him off the hook and neither Mr. Laird's kindness nor Mr. McGovern's innocence will take him off the hook.

The "integrity of the White House" is not what the American system is about. The phrase suggests an institution like monarchy. "Sir," said Johnson to Boswell, "you are to consider that in our constitution the king is the head, he is supreme, he is above everything and there is no power by which he can be tried."

Therefore, it is, sir, that we hold the king can do no wrong.

The American system is not based upon such institutions. It is based upon men.

Unlike other members of the dog family, the hyena dog has only four toes on each foot.

"BUT IT SEEMS REASONABLY CLEAR THAT CRIMES INCLUDES AT LEAST WIRE-TAPPING, THEFT, BURGLARY, BREAKING, ENTERING, PERJURY, MALFEASANCE IN OFFICE, SUBORNING PERJURY, ENTERING, PERJURY, OBSTRUCTION OF JUSTICE, AND VARIOUS FORMS OF CONSPIRACY."

"LAW AND ORDER"...?

To Be Equal

The Watergate symbol

The Watergate scandal is one that has rocked the very foundations of our society. It has paralyzed the government, damaged relations with other countries, and called into question the very credibility of our political institutions.

But I fear that the concentration on who did what to whom and why may obscure some of the deeper meanings of this affair.

For example, Watergate can be seen as a symbol of a view of our society and the political process that is founded on suspicion and mistrust. In the Watergate affair, men in high places apparently believed that the ends justified the means; even when those means were illegal. It stands for the very opposite of the open society we have been taught is the goal of a democracy.

If Watergate is symptomatic of such a distrustful view of society, then its ultimate importance might be in examining some other recent events that share that discredited view.

The systematic dismantling of social programs, the disengagement of the government from the war on poverty, the stress on what has been called "law and order," and other examples of indifference and even antagonism to the needs of poor people and minorities share with Watergate a mistrust of the masses of people and of their democratic institutions.

Coupling Watergate and the budget cuts may seem strange to some, but they are both indicative of a concern for ends without consideration of the means. They are both -- in the flagrant abuse of power as well as in heartlessness towards the poor -- subversive of a free and open society.

Such a free society must be one in which contending political ideas may freely circulate without harassment, and one in which individuals, families and minority groups are not penalized by poverty and discrimination.

While Watergate was dominating the headlines a Senate report said that some twelve million Americans are still malnourished and indicated that their numbers may increase because of the rise in food prices. To me, this is as much of a scandal as Watergate. And neglecting those hungry twelve million is part of the mindset that can tolerate bugging, stealing files, and other actions that undermine democracy.

Everyone seems to agree that the Watergate disclosures have severely damaged the country, but too few people also realize that the country is damaged if it rolls back the social reforms of the 1960s. Scandals and investigations make good headlines, hunger and want do not.

Long after the Watergate mess fades into the history books, it will be seen that the failure of our time was not in its lapses of political morality, but in its failure to do something about the pervasive social and racial conflicts that divide this society.

It should be remembered that Watergate is a 'white folks' mess,' not because black people are innately better or are incapable of abusing power, but because no blacks were part of the federal and party hierarchy. Thus, even in this, blacks are notable by their exclusion. To abuse responsibilities, one must first be in a responsible position.

I hope the lessons of Watergate will be learned--and quickly. Already there seems to be a new awareness of the importance of a free press, of the basic strength of the democratic institutions that exposed the scandal, and of the need for a more open government.

It is my hope that this will be reflected further in a new, more enlightened attitude toward black Americans by the Administration, and by a revised view of the basic social programs it planned to end.

Watergate is being fully exposed. Now it's time to turn the spotlight on the unmet needs and unfulfilled dreams of America's poor and its minorities.

Now it can be told. One of our beauties of the Miss Black Indianapolis Beauty Pageant had her life threatened last Saturday. She had police protection from her job to her home and the entire evening of the contest.

She was brave all the way. Her summary which was based on parts of her song of "We've Only Just Begun," was as beautiful as she was. What happened? She got the crumbs of fourth when she should have gotten the whole loaf.

What happened? Did the crack

Blacks not responsible for higher Northern welfare rolls

NEW ORLEANS---

The widely held view that black migrants from the South are principally responsible for the dramatic rise in recent years of Northern welfare rolls is not true, according to a new study of the 1970 Census findings.

The report also found that Southern blacks, who have moved to the North by the thousands into crowded inner cities in the North, are less likely to be poor or on welfare than their urban-born counterparts.

Larry H. Long, a Bureau of the Census demographer, in making his report to the three-day meeting of the Population Association of America, said that the study also found that blacks who had moved from the South since 1955 were more likely to be poor or on welfare than either the earlier migrants or the urban-born.

Although he conceded that black migration has added to the welfare problem in the North, Long said that "black migrants have accounted for a less-than-proportionate increase in the welfare rolls" when compared to those born in the cities.

The findings, which will be published soon by the Census Bureau, were based on responses to 1970 questionnaires in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles and Washington, D.C. They were chosen because they all have at least 500,000 black residents. The survey, taking note of the theory that "people in economically depressed areas tend to move to areas where income-earning possibilities are greater," noted, Long said, that it was "impossible to decide how many of the people moving to the high-income, high-welfare states were moving because of the high income and how many were moving because of the high welfare."

He discovered that blacks who had moved from the South since 1955, were more likely to be poor or on welfare than either the earlier migrants or the urban-born.

"That blacks having recently arrived from the South have higher rates of poverty and welfare dependence than earlier migrants may suggest either of two interpretations," he said.

"On the one hand, this finding may suggest that after an initial period of adjustment, the recent migrants from the South will be more successful in finding and holding jobs than blacks born in the cities where they were living in 1970."

"On the other hand, it is possible that the recent black immigrants from the South represent a change of migration patterns. Perhaps they will continue to have rates of poverty and welfare dependence as high as urban-born. That is, the recent Southern migrants may not come to resemble the earlier migrants."

Long said he had also found that black women who were heads of households that had migrated from the South were less likely to be on welfare or to have incomes under the poverty level than those born in the states in which the cities were saturated.

Black Southern migrants, in general, were "more economically successful" than blacks born in the Northern cities, he concluded.

He suggested that the notion that a large number of blacks had been attracted to the North by the prospect of higher welfare payments, which is broadly accepted and espoused by the President and many other persons, appears unlikely.

The President, in a speech on welfare in August, 1969, when talking about the discrepancies in welfare payments among the states, said, "one result of this inequality is to lure thousands more into already overcrowded inner cities as unprepared for city life as they are for city jobs."

"When one compares black urban natives with blacks born in other states," Long said, "the conclusion is that Southern birth is not a handicap. But when one compares white urban natives with whites born in other states, Southern birth is a definite handicap insofar as poverty and welfare dependence are concerned."

Congressional Black Caucus to increase legislative efforts

BY CHARLIE COBB

WASHINGTON--(NBNS)--The Congressional Black Caucus, set up to function as an investigative clearing house of black concerns has decided to focus its efforts on legislative action. Caucus Chairman Louis Stokes (D-Ohio) said in Washington last week that "we now feel we can best serve black America through our legislative efforts so that will be our thrust henceforth."

The Caucus has been concentrating its group efforts on convening a series of issue-centered meetings on items that concern black people. However, "we couldn't be all the things that everybody wanted us to be," Stokes noted.

Because of the low salaries it offered the Caucus found it difficult to attract the kind of supportive staff that it needed. Staff problems were compounded by the fact that in addition to the Caucus staff, each Representative had his own regular staff. Coordination between the two staffs was sometimes poor. Priorities were sometimes unclear. Rep. William A. Clay (D-Missouri) noted that "only a couple of staff members actually had working relations with our regular staffs."

Stokes said that there was considerable potential for influencing legislation given 14 black members of Congress. "Most controversial legislation is passed or defeated by a margin of 10 votes or less," he explained.

The Black Caucus is generally acknowledged as an influential voting bloc in the House. "A bloc like ours can provide the pivotal vote on an issue," Stokes pointed out.

Citing the fact that the 1971 vote on legislation to approve construction of supersonic air transport was defeated by one vote in the House Stokes noted that 11 of the then 13 members of the Caucus voted against the measure. "Our vote clearly made the difference," Mr. Stokes said.

Elaborating on the influence that the Caucus generates in the House, Stokes said that there were 75 to 100 Representatives who often followed the Caucus' lead because they were elected in districts where black votes made the difference.

The Caucus has hired Augustus Alven Adair, a professor in political science from Morgan State College in Maryland to organize a supportive staff for the legislative focus the Caucus intends to develop. Adair will also begin to draw on black expertise from around the country.

Clay noted that "there are thousands of black professionals around the country that we need to draw from as we formulate our legislative proposals."

The initial legislative efforts of the Caucus will center on attempting to revive the social programs scrapped by Nixon.

"VOLUNTEER FIREMAN OR NO, —STOP FOOLING WITH MY HOSE!"

Pacers finally put it all together to win third ABA championship

The Indiana Pacers put it all together when it counted last Saturday afternoon in Louisville and the result was an 88-81 drubbing of the Kentucky Colonels and a second straight American Basketball Association title.

It was a far cry from the sixth game played here at the Coliseum last Thursday night in which the Pacers suffered a 109-93 defeat forcing the seventh and final game of the series.

The windup had plenty of heroes. George McGinnis, voted the ABA playoff's most valuable player, scored 27 big points, most of them coming when the Pacers needed them.

Then there was towering Darnell Hillman, the big man underneath for the Pacers with 13 rebounds and a super defensive job. Roger Brown, who came off the bench to contribute key baskets with 10 points and four assists. Donnie Freeman with 15 points and four assists; Mel Daniels, who got into early foul trouble but still came through with nine rebounds and nine points; veteran Gus Johnson who didn't score that much but whose seven rebounds were a key factor, and reliable Billy Keller, who came off the bench to run the Pacer offense when needed.

But it was Hillman and McGinnis who made the big difference.

Starting in place of Brown, Hillman, a second-year man from San Jose State, did an outstanding job defending against the offensive attack of Gilmore, the league's leading rebounder, and Dan Issel, the Colonels' leading scorer.

Gilmore had 19 points to lead the Colonels, plus 17 rebounds, but Issel could manage only 12 points, about 16 below his average and hauled in 10 rebounds. McGinnis, who went from goat to hero last week, hit 13 of his game-high 27 points in the fourth period as Brown, Johnson and Hillman repeatedly found him near the basket.

The Pacers jumped off to a 24-18 lead in the first period before a national television audience but the second quarter almost proved fatal as Indiana was outscored 23-18 for a mere 41-40 halftime lead. The Pacers hit a mere .250 per cent in the second on 5 of 20 from the floor.

But the third period was just as bad for the Colonels. They scored a record low 11 points that quarter on 3 of 21 from the field and 5 of 10 from the charity stripe and things weren't looking any better and ended 65-52 at the end of the third quarter.

The Colonels did come back in the fourth, however, as former Pacer Rick Mount hit a trio of three-pointers near the close to make the contest just seven points difference.

It was indeed a sweet victory for the Pacers, who seemed to drag through most of the season, but who won when the money was on the line.

It was especially sweet for Freeman, who had labored through six ABA seasons without ever winning the big one, and Johnson the ex-Baltimore Bullet star who never played on a championship team.

But most of all it was sweet for the Pacer fans, many of whom turned out last Thursday night in hopes the Pacers would end it all here. Instead they watched their team fall by a convincing 109-93 count and take the series back to Louisville for the final.

Indiana trailed only 78-76 with 44 seconds remaining in the third period last Thursday evening (that had trailed by as many as 14), but Kentucky then reeled off a 19-3 surge to put the game on ice.

Aaron now just 31 shy of Ruth's mark

ATLANTA---

Hammerin' Hank Aaron continued his surge towards Babe Ruth's home record last weekend, belting his 9th and 10th homers of the season against the San Diego Padres in a double-header.

He now stands just 31 shy of Ruth's record 714. The 39-year-old super star also shares the major league home run lead this season with Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell.

Aaron belted No. 682 in a pinch hitting role off Bill Greif in the ninth inning of the opener, won by the Padres, 6-0.

He then hit No. 683 off Fred Norman in the third inning of the nightcap, giving the Braves their go-ahead run in a 6-2 victory.

many by now," Aaron said Sunday.

The warmer weather in May has turned Aaron into a terror in this his 20th season. He was hitting only 1.25 in April but this month has 15 hits in 37 at bat, a .405 mark that has lifted his season average to .237. Included in the streak were five home runs and nine runs batted in.

Aaron has come under some criticism for swinging for the fences.

"That kind of talk doesn't bother me," he said. "I know some people say I should go to right field more but it's not that easy to adjust.

"Besides I just have to take whatever comes. When you're 23 or 24 years old and they throw you all those screwballs and slow curves you can adjust and hit the ball to right. But it's a little late for me. I wish I could. I'd like to be hitting .350, too, but I'm not."

Willis places ninth in Junior Mr. America meet

Competing against 34 of the top physique men in the country, Sammy Willis of the Indianapolis Leadership Committee (ILC) placed ninth in the Junior Mr. America contest held last weekend in York, Pa.

The 19-year-old Port Gibson, Miss., native finished fourth in the most muscular division.

Winner of the title was Paul Hill of Los Angeles, Calif. Second went to Willie Johnson of Akron, O., and third to Anibal Lopez.

Next comes Mr. Midwest competition Sunday in Cincinnati and later, the Mr. America contest in Washington, D.C.

The event was Willis' first in.

It's no go for 'title' game between Pacers and Knicks

Immediately following Indiana's victory over Kentucky Saturday afternoon for the ABA "Bring on the Knicks."

The Knicks are the New York Knickerbockers, champions of the National Basketball Association who defeated the Los Angeles Lakers, four games to one.

The Pacers front office contacted the Knicks office on Monday to talk about the possibility of a showdown between the two championship clubs for the "world title."

However, Ned Irish, president of the Knicks, rejected the offer pointing out that the Knicks have disbanded "and we couldn't get it together if we wanted."

"Our season's over," said Irish, "and anyway we're not interested now in such a game. There is no practical way to play it."

Pacers vice-president John Weissert said the Hoosiers were willing to divide the gate receipts, but Coach Bobby Leonard said he was willing to play on a "winner-take-all" basis.

Richard P. Tinkham, Pacers' executive vice-president, also proposed that the two teams meet in exhibition at the beginning of next season, but Irish said the schedule is already made out and couldn't be changed.

Black player stars in hockey

EDMONTON, Alberta---

Henry Taylor of Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League is something of a rarity - a black American playing top-class junior hockey.

Some pros complain that they can't keep their minds on the game in sunny California, but Henry, who is from Berkeley, hasn't thought of anything else since he first laced on a pair of ice skates.

"The king will be a pro," says the Oil King's coach, Brian Shaw.

"He's got all kinds of desire and loads of class."

Hockey scouts do not exactly go out of their way to get to Berkeley where Henry learned to play hockey. As a consequence, he had to go to them. He was discovered at a hockey school in Nelson, British Columbia, and Shaw decided to put him on the Oil Kings' list.

Bill Hunter, the Oil Kings' general manager, says the credit for discovering the 17-year-old forward should go to the Pentecost club in the British Columbia Junior Hockey League.

"He played for that club for the first half of the season, before I got down again to take a good look at him," Shaw says.

"I liked what I saw and decided to give him a try."

At the time, the Oil Kings had just traded three players to the Swift Current Broncos for Don Eastcott, so there was room on the team.

"I was surprised," says Taylor. "I really didn't think I was playing that well. I was really shocked."

Discrimination is no problem he says, because there isn't any.

"Henry isn't one to take offense," his coach says. "These kids play and live under a lot of pressure and it's inevitable that in their associations with one another things will be said that can be taken more than one way -- just slips of the tongue. "If Henry were any other sort of young man than he is, that could cause all sorts of trouble."

Ice time is something that was a scarcity when Henry was developing through the midget ranks as a hockey player. He got in one game and one practice a week.

"It seemed the ice was always taken up with figure skating," Henry says. "My older brothers got me interested in hockey. One played for the Spokane Blades in the British Columbia Junior League and the other played for Golden College in Maine."

"We used to go to every public skating session and last year I coached a house league team in Berkeley just to get more ice time."

"When we brought him up, Henry lacked only two things," says Shaw. "He couldn't skate backwards too well and he just wasn't aggressive enough. But he's come along nicely."

'A NIGHT TO FORGET': Big Mel Daniels prepares to go up over Kentucky's Artis Gilmore during sixth game action between Pacers and Colonels last Thursday night. Moving in on the action is Pacer George McGinnis. It wasn't a night to remember, however, as the home team took a 109-93 lashing but recovered to win the series and their second straight ABA title. (Recorder photo by Jim Burres).

Rutherford takes pole at 198.413 mph

Jimmy Rutherford qualified his No. 7 McLaren at an average speed of 198.413 miles per hour Saturday to take the pole position in this year's May 28 500 Mile Race.

Rutherford, a 35-year-old racer from Fort Worth, Tex., finally made the pole after 11 seasons at the Speedway. His fastest lap was clocked at 199.071. His average and the one lap speed are both records.

A total of 30 of the 33 starting positions were filled last weekend at an average speed of 192.572, an increase of 8.561 mph over the 1972 average for 30 cars.

Bobby Unser took the middle of the front row with an average speed of 198.183. Defending champ Mark Donohue took the outside spot with his speed of 197.412.

Swede Savage, a 26-year-old Californian, placed fourth in qualifying at 196.582. Joining him on the second row will be Garry Bettenhausen at 195.599, and Mario Andretti with a 195.059.

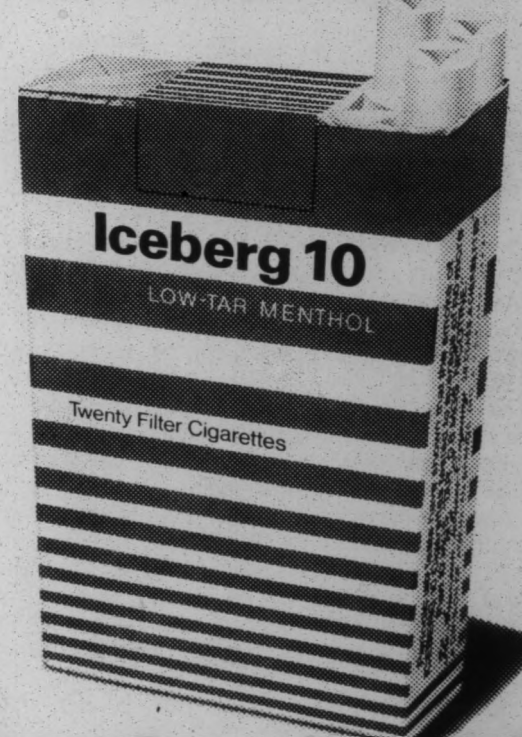

The third row consists of Steve Krisiloff (194.932), Al Unser (194.679) and Jimmy Caruthers (194.217).

Most of the 350,000 fans that jammed the Speedway Saturday were looking for the 200 mph mark, but instead found wind and tragedy. Veteran driver Art Pollard was killed in a practice lap.

Most drivers agreed that the March-like wind played a major role in preventing the 200 mph mark.

Labor Department employe authors book: 'Pioneers of Black Sport'

WASHINGTON---

A black slave who brought his freedom with his fists might have become the first heavyweight champion of the world back in 1810, if a hand-her hadn't stalled the fight until the titleholder recovered from a knockout punch.

That fact was emblemed in a sports column of The Times of London dating back to the day after the fight and remained there until dug out by Ocania Chalk, a U.S. Labor Department employee who has written a book he had long wanted to read. The book, Pioneers of Black Sport, will be published in the fall.

Chalk, a native of North Carolina, had fought in Korea with the Army, and then spent the next 10 years in York, Pa., as a welfare social worker. Always interested in sports, he found his interest in reading about early black athletes turning into a hobby.

"I kept looking for books about them, and found only bits and pieces here and there," he said.

In the meantime, an ambition to write, was making itself felt, and Chalk was experiencing occasional success in place in articles. Finally determined to pursue his ambition, Chalk, now an editorial clerk for the Bureau of Labor Statistics, came to Washington just as the Urban League and the Washington Daily News started an on-the-reporters. Chalk was one of three blacks selected as general assignment reporters.

In his off-hours he continued his research, but in Washington he had available the resources of the Library of Congress, one of the most complete in the world.

There in a bound copy of The Times, he found the full account of what had happened to Tom Molineaux on his great day of disappointment. Molineaux had been born a slave in Georgetown, D.C., but then a quite port serving tobacco plantations in the area. His ability to handle his fists quickly became apparent and his owner saw - and took - the opportunity to win some money arranging matches with slaves from other plan-

Youths arrested in Burger Chef theft

Two teenage youths were arrested Friday and charged with armed robbery in connection with the robbery of Burger Chef, 1607 Roosevelt.

Lucinda Johnson, 24, an employee at the restaurant said the youths entered the store at 8:30 p.m., and one ordered an orange pop. The other youth had his back to her, and then turned with a sawed off shotgun and said, "Give me all you got."

She told police she first thought it was a joke and started to give the first suspect his change.

The youths gave her a bag and told her to put the cash register on the counter. They took an undetermined amount of money in a Burger Chef bag and fled west on Ingram, police said.

Minutes later an Indianapolis police officer observed a 17-year-old youth who matched the description of one of the bandits. When told to stop by an officer the youth fled and was momentarily lost during the ensuing chase.

He was then apprehended later in his home where he had changed clothes. The second subject a 14-year-old youth, was arrested in his home after police determined he was involved in the robbery.

Both youths were turned over to juvenile authorities. The sawed-off shotgun was not recovered by police.

"One report is Tom made his master $100,000 - in a time when boxing was not considered a real sport in America before Tom was freed," the slender, bearded Chalk said. England where boxing, while illegal, was still a recognized sport. The bout had to be held in an out-of-the-way spot, away from the scrutiny of law enforcement officials. And that day it rained. It rained and rained as the two men fought.

Milneaux struck the champion down. A handler jumped into the ring, protesting Milneaux had lead in his fist delaying the fight long enough for the champion to recover and eventually win the bout.

That is the only one of the stories Chalk tells of black football, baseball, basketball and other sports figures who sometimes had to pass for swarthy South Americans or Indians to get into a game.

While researching, Chalk experienced his own difficulties. THE NEWS' training program was discontinued as an economy measure. Chalk was hired by the Labor Department, and by last Spring was ready to send an outline of his book, to 15 publishers. He soon had an agreement with one.

"After that, with all the material at hand, the interviews, the responses to letters, the pictures, the book just wrote itself," Chalk said. And if he has his way Black Pioneers in Sports will represent only his pioneer effort as an author.
